deregulatory zeal continues to sweep through the European Commission and member states. If you care about the environment, workers' rights, or public health, this so-called 'Better Regulation' agenda is highly concerning, as it is used to weaken or abolish current rules, while significantly hampering or

REPROTECTING EUROPE

The European Green Deal vs the war on regulations.

BY DAVID POWELL, PATRICK TEN BRINK, FRANCESCA CARLSSON, EMILY SCURRAH, FRANK VAN LERVEN, ADRIAN BUA
23 JANUARY 2020

Europe faces multiple environmental, social, and economic challenges. The European Council, representing the Member States, has endorsed the Commission's commitment to becoming climate neutral by 2050 as part of the European Green Deal, and the European Parliament has adopted a resolution declaring a climate and environmental emergency. It seems very hard to conclude that this is a time when we need Europe to be focused on regulating less and reducing regulatory 'burdens' as a point of principle. But the deregulatory mindset that has taken hold of the European Commission over the last two decades is increasingly visible. Its agenda is rooted in ideology and has been pushed for decades by corporate lobbying as part of a desire to ensure that the

The FIC revision process

Better Regulation requires that the Commission:

- Seeks feedback on an inception impact assessment
- Undertakes an impact assessment
- Conducts a 12-week public consultation and targeted stakeholder consultations
- Submits and responds to review by the Regulatory Scrutiny Board
- Will gather feedback on a legislative proposal...

Questions for the audience

- What has delayed the FIC Regulation revision?
- What was your experience with the consultation process for the FIC Regulation revision?
- Have the Better Regulation tools and processes strengthened or improved the revision process for the FIC Regulation?

More generally,

- What is your experience with EU impact assessments, evaluation and/or consultations?
- What, in your view, are the positive and negative aspects of Better Regulation? What has it improved; where does it cause difficulty?

Thank you
